

Wilson Fairchild has been called, "Country Music Royalty." While Wil and Langdon don't wear cowboy hats studded with jewels or countrified purple robes, they do hail from the legendary double-Hall of Fame quartet, The Statler Brothers. The Reid boys, who are cousins, are the sons of Harold and Don Reid, the only brothers from The Statlers. And this is a family business continued and a legacy of entertaining Wilson Fairchild inherited honestly, as well as carrying on in a royal kind of way.

Wil and Langdon Reid, who have been performing 20+ years, are no strangers to the stage. From a lifetime of playing guitars, singing, storytelling, and making people laugh, performing is second nature to these fine-tuned entertainers with obvious traits of their musical heritage.

Also coined "The Ambassadors of Traditional Country Music," their self-penned anthem, "Country On," includes their maxim of "We love country music and we'll never let it die." Heartfelt and wholesome, they leave every audience wanting more!

With the latest release, Songs Our Dads Wrote, Wilson Fairchild is touring and showcasing the music that inspired them to be entertainers. Whether in a coffee house, a community center, a theater, a fair or festival, or an arena, their 'roots' and traditional approach to every song is a breath of fresh air on the music scene.
